Crex Meadows Youth Conservation Camp

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

The Crex Meadows Youth Conservation Camp is a unique skill development program. The camp employs approximately seventy at-risk youth (economically disadvantaged, those with special education needs or other barriers) ages 14-18, residing in the ten northwest counties of Wisconsin. Over four, two-week sessions during the summer, these youth assist the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Habitat for Humanity and other regional organizations with a variety of environmental conservation and community improvement projects and participate in daily academic and experiential learning activities.

Summer Work Experience

The Crex Camp offers youth the opportunity to:

- Work outside

CAMPER EVALUATION

Each camper is evaluated on the following 21st century skills throughout their time at camp. The evaluations give the campers insight into how their personal work skills can translate into their future world of work. They learn about strengths, weaknesses and ways to improve. Each camper is evaluated in writing and participate in a face-to-face evaluation on the following criteria:

- | | | | |
|--------------------|--------------------------|---------------------------|---------------------------|
| • Responsibility | • Problem Solving | • Dependability | • Lifelong Learning |
| • Teamwork | • Systems Thinking | • Commitment to Tasks | • Adapting to Change |
| • Persistence | • Information Processing | • Motivation & Initiative | • Courtesy & Friendliness |
| • Sense of Quality | • Attitude towards Work | • Quality of Work | • Cooperation |
| | | | • Judgment |

The CAMPER Experience:

- I came away with amazing new friends and the attitude to try to associate with people from all backgrounds and to get to know them.
- I know that I am able to work when I'm motivated but also that I don't always need motivation to work at my best!
- I learned that challenges are the best way to grow.
- I am walking away with the knowledge of what team work really is.
- I learned that living in a schedule can be good and how to ignore small things in a pursuit of the end result.
